

Grayson is a Senior Project Manager for PMA, a national real estate development consultant that partners with life science developers and end users to lead planning and management efforts through every phase of their project. He's worked in the life science sector for 14 years, managing both the design and construction process, with a focus on cGMP manufacturing. He's worked as a general contractor for much of his career, traveling for projects all over the country, ranging in size from a few million, to a few billion. He's worked on life science projects for clients such as, BioMed Realty, Budd Bioworks, Catalent, Celgene, Genentech, Gilead, HealthPeak Properties, Longfellow, and Pacira.